MATHEWSON, OF DIAMOND FAME, DEAD

Tuberculosis, Result of Being Gassed in War, Caused His Death

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Christy Mathewson, one of the greatest baseball pitchers of all time, is dead in his mountain camp.

A hero of the world war as well as of the diamond, on which he was the first big college star, he died late last night of tuberculosis and pneumonia, the result of being gassed while a captain in the chemical warfare service in France. The end came while his buddies in the American Legion were holding their annual convention in Omaha, and while Walter Johnson, his greatest contemporary, was being hailed as the hero in a world series, much as Mathewson had been in the past.

"Big Six," as he was known because of his stature, battled intermittently with tuberculosis for five years. He went to France in 1918 after three years as manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Returning as coach of the New York Giants, with whom he had played for 17 seasons, he was taken seriously ill in 1920 and retired to Saranac Lake.

REAPPORTIONMENT PLEA IN SUPREME COURT

Fegur's Plea to File Mandamus Petition is Granted

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—John B. Fegur, Chicago, was granted permission by the supreme court today to file a petition asking for a writ of mandamus to compel reapportionment according to the state constitution.

As a result of this action each of the 202 members of the legislature, including 57 members in Chicago, will be served by county sheriffs with notice to appear here the first day of the December term by attorney. It is expected that twenty or thirty lawyers will represent the majority of the legislature.

The petition was filed by John A. Watson for John Fegur.

Regarding the petition, Chief Justice Dun said:

"This is a motion for leave to file petition for a writ of Mandamus commanding members of the general assembly to meet and apportion the state as directed by section six article four of the constitution.

"The question whether the courts have jurisdiction to compel legislative action as directed by the constitution, is a question of such public importance that we think it proper that it should be determined judicially and therefore the motion is allowed and the writ will issue returnable to the first day of the December term."

Several Dixonites Were Indicted in Whiteside Co.

INVESTIGATION OF SHENANDOAH IS IN TANGLE AS RESULT

War Department Notified of Mitchell's Latest Action

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Col. William Mitchell refused today to testify before the naval court investigating the airship Shenandoah disaster. After he had objected to being sworn before the court under the order of the army directing him to appear, a formal subpoena for his appearance was issued today by the naval body. Judge Foley delivered it in person and Mitchell refused to accept service under advice of his counsel.

While the court was in executive session, determining its course after Mitchell had objected to taking the oath, Representative Reid of Illinois, his attorney, made public a communication which the Colonel sent yesterday to the Adjutant General of the army.

Advised officially that Col. Mitchell had refused to appear in court, the Judge Advocate was directed to communicate that fact to the war department which originally had ordered Mitchell to come before the court and give testimony.

The refusal of Col. Mitchell to testify has thrown the proceedings into a tangle that can only be unraveled by the higher officers of the navy and war departments.

The court therefore adjourned until tomorrow.

Bishop Brown's Appeal May Be Heard by Board

New Orleans, La., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America entered its second day's session with a prospect that before the day was over the case of Bishop William M. Brown would come up. Bishop Brown, who has been convicted of heresy and the conviction affirmed, sat in the House of Bishops yesterday afternoon. He was appealing from his conviction and its affirmation and, it is understood, will address his fellow bishops when opportunity offers.

The report of the presiding bishop, the Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, had right of way and it was understood that the case of Bishop Brown might be made a special order after Bishop Talbot had reported.

The all-absorbing topic before the bishops as they begin their meeting is the election of a presiding bishop who will also be president of the national council. In the past the post of presiding bishop has been filled by order of seniority. The election here will be the first of the revised procedure.

FLYER BURNED TO DEATH WHEN TRYING TO LAND

Popular Officer Meets Death at Chanute Field Today

Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—First Lieut. William L. Wheeler, 34, one of the most popular officers of the air service at Chanute Field, was burned to death at 10:15 o'clock this morning when the airplane which he was piloting burst into flames 25 feet in the air and crashed to the ground a mass of fire. Cecil St. Burger, private first class, his passenger, leaped to the ground, alighting on his face, but sustaining only minor injuries.

Lieutenant Wheeler was preparing to land the airplane, a De Havilland 4-B, when without warning the fire broke out and the tragic accident quickly followed. Lieut. Wheeler was an experienced pilot, but he had no chance to escape as the flames quickly enveloped the machine. It was only by his quick wittedness that Private Burger managed to avoid a similar death, his mid-air leap only saving his life.

Engine trouble is presumably the cause of the fatal disaster, which was the first at Chanute Field for months. An investigation board will be formed and will pronounce its findings after a hearing is held and in investigation of evidence completed.

Following the sight of the burning airplane officers and men at the field rushed to the scene. They arrived too late to be of any service to Lieut. Wheeler and Private Burger was able to go to the field hospital for first aid. There is was discovered that his injuries were not serious and that he would soon recover from his experience.

LEGION TEAM IN HARDEST BATTLE OF YEAR SUNDAY

Go to Spring Valley to Meet Fast Wild Cats Sunday

The Dixon Legion football team is putting on the finishing touches for the second game of their schedule which promises to be one of the hardest of the season, the annual meeting next Sunday with the Spring Valley Wild Cats on the latter's home lot. Coach Dee has strengthened the line by the changing about of some of the players and no small amount of attention has been paid to the interference.

Last Sunday's game with the Keokuk Bears in which practically every candidate was given a chance, showed up some weak points and these are being strengthened for Sunday's battle. Coach Dee believes that the material available and without a ripple on his list, Dixon stands a very good chance of winning from the Wild Cats. The team will be accompanied by a big delegation of fans and it is planned to take the Dixon Legion post band along.

RELEASES OWNER OF BUILDING IN CASE HE IS HURT

"Human Fly" All Ready to Climb Building This Evening

Harry H. Gardner, the only real and original "Human Fly," who will give Dixon crowds a hair raising thrill this evening by climbing up the front wall of the Dixon National Bank building, has signed a release with the owners of the building, releasing them from any damages in case of an accident and has been given permission to make the attempt. He will also have the co-operation of city authorities and traffic will be directed in such a way that spectators will be given every chance to see Mr. Gardner in his death defying stunt.

Under the rays of powerful searchlights the "Human Fly" will scale the outside of the building and descend again, performing stunts during his climb.

Byers to Introduce Him.

Hon. John H. Byers, well known Dixonite, will address the audience and will introduce Mr. Gardner. The exhibition is being put on for the benefit of the American Legion and members of the post will pass among the crowd for free-will donations to the Legion.

The affair starts promptly at 7:30.

Mr. Gardner, a handsome and very interesting gentleman, a graduate of Columbia University, is 55 years old, but looks about 35. He will be dressed in white and will display an athletic ability, an agility of body and a coolness of head that will amaze you. You will probably think he is trying to commit suicide, but he has been doing this sort of stunt for about 25 years so he really feels quite safe when he is a hundred feet or a thousand above a paved street, hanging on to a crack in the masonry by his finger tips.

Nelson Sunday School to Meet Sunday Morning

Next Sunday, Oct. 11th, Nelson Sunday School will meet in the morning at 10:30 as a result of the vote taken at its usual afternoon session last Sunday, and this morning hour will become the regular time of meeting. There was a record attendance last Sunday, with all the newly appointed teachers present. The only officer absent was the one who is visiting in Wisconsin and will soon return.

The coming Sunday will be of special interest because of the naming of commissioners to represent the school in its group work. The following week these commissioners are expected to visit Salem Union Sunday school of the same group, and Nelson will be taken into the plans of the larger organization at the commissioners' meeting there at that time. This is one of the many plans by which the American Sunday School Union, of which the Nelson school now belongs, is able to maintain its Sunday schools.

Tribute to Mathewson

The Stars and Stripes on the center field flag pole were at half mast to remind the fans that baseball overnight had lost one of its greatest figures in the death of Christy Mathewson.

Five minutes before game time Empire Owens called the two clubs to the plate where they stood up. The players of each club wore mourning bands on their left arm. Led by a band the two clubs in parallel lines marched across the field from the home plate to deep centerfield, where exercises were held briefly in honor of the late President of the Boston Braves. There was a solemn hush among the fans as the two clubs faced each other in the field. The band played "Nearer My God to Thee" while the immense crowd stood with uncovered heads. The band then played the "Star Spangled Banner" while the colors were raised and then brought back to half staff.

The two clubs then lined up and marched across the field while the crowd broke into a big cheer.

NEWS FROM DIXON

New Method of Showing Play in Series Games

The Dixon Y. M. C. A. is giving the returns of the World Series base ball games, play by play. The method used in showing these returns met with much enthusiasm the first game of the series.

The reports of the games begin promptly at 1:00 p. m., and this is received over the radio. Also a heavy roll paper has been so arranged that each play is easily recorded and is plainly visible. As the game proceeds the paper is unrolled and enters the upper part of the window; in this way the whole of the half inning is plainly visible.

The method used has attracted a great deal of attention and the crowd continues to grow during the report of the series. These returns are seen in front of the Y. M. C. A. building on Galena avenue and all interested are cordially invited to get the returns as they are recorded, play by play.

GREDINAR FOUND GUILTY BY JURY; FACES DEPORTING

Jurors Deliberated But Half an Hour Before Reaching Verdict

Constantin "Black Joe" Gredinar was found guilty on the first count contained in the indictment charging him with violation of the prohibition law, by a jury in the circuit court shortly before noon today. The count upon which he was found guilty by the jury was that of selling intoxicating liquor. The jury deliberated about a half hour before returning the verdict, which may be the means of sending Gredinar to the state penitentiary and likewise result in the beginning of deportation proceedings, this constituting his second offense which is deemed a felony.

Hard Fought Case
Attorneys Erwin and Brooks conducted a hard fight for their client, the case being one of the most bitterly fought liquor cases in Lee County since the prohibition law became effective. A wordy fight was conducted by defense attorneys upon the subject of hired operators to secure evidence in liquor cases and bitter attacks were directed at those who were instrumental in this last prosecution of Gredinar. Witnesses were placed on the stand yesterday afternoon to prove to the jury that on the dates that operators testified that they purchased liquor in quantities and in drinks from Gredinar at his home east of the city on the Daysville road, that he was not at home, but was engaged extensively in the building of fences.

Reach Verdict Soon.
Clashes between attorneys were quite frequent this morning when final arguments were being made before the jury. Arguments were completed and the jury instructed, and retired shortly before 11 o'clock and a half hour later, returned with their verdict. It was expected this afternoon that a motion to appeal would be filed by Gredinar's attorneys.

Legion in Favor U. S. Adherence to World Court

Jurors Deliberated But Work to That End by Vote Today

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The American Legion adopted a resolution today requesting the "immediate adherence of the United States to a court of international justice," substituted for a proposal by the world peace committee that the Legion "request the government of the United States to adhere immediately to the permanent court of international justice set up by the League of Nations and pledging the Legion to work towards that end."

One of the greatest fights of the Legion's existence loomed today. The promised battle centered on the report of the legionnaires first aeronautical committee. That body laboring all of yesterday before finally evolving a paragraph that left out the name of Col. William Mitchell, the air service critic, but which would recommend support for one of his proposals. The report, prepared for submission to the convention today will recommend the Legion go on record as favoring development of a new cabinet position, that of the defense department, with three subordinate branches equally representative of the army, navy and air service.

It was regarded as more or less a desperate compromise measure, inasmuch as a heated fight over mention of Mitchell's name on the floor of the convention was promised, no matter what wording was presented in the committee's official report.

Since the Legionnaires began to pour into Omaha last Sunday "Billy" Mitchell, his suggestions and his present army status have been chief subjects of conversation in all quarters.

Early yesterday he found one outspoken sponsor in Father Loerger of Illinois, the national chaplain of the Legion. The chaplain is known as a powerful orator and a man of strong convictions.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle, and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle of Rheuma today.—Adv.

BEE-KEEPERS TO MEET THIS MONTH TO TALK PROBLEMS

Every Bee Keeper Has Invitation to Rockford Meeting

The Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin Beekeepers Association will hold their annual meeting at Memorial Hall Rockford, October 20.

This meeting is going to be of unusual interest to the bee keepers in the northern part of Illinois, even the bee keeper with just a few hives.

These counties in this part of the State have the highest assessed valuation of any counties in the State except Cook and Lake, and the last session of the Legislature recognized the need of more assistance to the bee industry and appropriated $36,000 for this biennium for bee inspection and the eradication of bee diseases.

There have been several severe outbreaks in northern Illinois this past season and the co-operation of all beekeepers is essential to get control of the diseases in this territory.

Every beekeeper should make it a point to be at this meeting and get first hand information on this subject. The President of the Illinois State Beekeepers Association and the Chief Inspector of Apiaries will be present. These gentlemen will tell about what may be expected in the way of relief.

Marketing Problems
The beekeepers marketing problems will be discussed by Prof. H. F. Wilson, University of Wisconsin. The Association feels very fortunate in being able to get Prof. Wilson because he has did splendid work along this line in his own state. The beekeepers there are getting several cents per pound more than Illinois men are enjoying, and he more than likely will give some pointers that will help with marketing problems. There will be able advice given on production and the discussion of wintering methods that will be of interest to every beekeeper. This meeting promises to be one of the best ever held in this part of the state.

eral years—handicapping his effectiveness.

Mathewson, however, was not long in attracting major league attention. Playing with Norfolk, in the Virginia League, in 1900, he won 21 out of 23 games, and was obtained by the Giants, when John McGraw turned him back, after a brief try-out, for more seasoning with the Southern Club. Later the same year he was drafted by Cincinnati, but soon afterward was sent to the Giants in a deal by which the Reds secured Amos Rusie.

Was Playing First.
Matty's first major league appearance was in the role of relief pitcher in a game lost by the Giants to Brooklyn. He had but indifferent success as a pitcher and utility player until 1902, when John McGraw succeeded Horace Fogel as manager of the Giants. "Big Six" was playing first base at the time but McGraw quickly recognized his pitching ability, and took him in hand. His strides toward greatness dated from that period.

Feats of pitching brilliance too numerous to catalogue filled Matty's record during the dozen years in which he ranked consistently among the most effective twirlers in the major leagues.

He was a prominent factor in the pennant victories of the Giants in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912 and 1913; he twirled two no-hit games, one against the St. Louis Cardinals, in 1901, and the second against the Chicago Cubs, in 1905; he held jointly with "Cy" Young and Grover Cleveland Alexander, a major league record of winning more than 30 games three seasons in a row; but his greatest achievement was in the world's series of 1905 when he pitched three shut-out victories against the Philadelphia Americans.

His Outstanding Feat.
McGraw ranks Mathewson's feat in the 1905 series as the greatest in his memory. All five games in that series were shut-outs. Joe McGinnity twirling the fourth victory for the Giants while "Chief" Bender blanked the Giants for the only triumph scored by the Mackmen.

Mathewson had the misfortune to lose two of the most important games of his career, the play-off contest with the Chicago Cubs for the pennant in 1908 and the deciding game of the world's series with the Boston Red Sox in 1912. Breaks of the game played a big part in both defeats. Misjudgment of a fly by "Cy" Seymour, Giant outfielder, was blamed for the defeat by the Cubs while a costly error by Fred Snodgrass turned the tide against the Giants and Matty in the struggle with the Red Sox.

Brown Greatest Rival.
Mordca (Three-fingered) Brown, of the Cubs, was Matty's greatest rival on the mound and the two had many stirring duels. Brown was Matty's opponent when the latter pitched his no-hit game against the Cubs in 1905 but conquered his New York rival in the famous 1908 play-off game. It was related that one season when the Giants and Cubs were battling for first place, President Taft, an ardent fan, had his private car attached to the train bearing the New York team to Chicago in order to see Mathewson and Brown oppose each other in the opening game of a series.

Oddly enough, both of these great pitchers closed their major league careers as players by opposing each other in a game on September 4, 1916. Mathewson was then manager of Cincinnati and the Reds won, 19 to 8, both "old masters" being hit freely.

Injured His Shoulder.
Mathewson suffered a shoulder injury in 1914 which virtually ended his career as a regular on the mound. He pitched infrequently thereafter and persuaded McGraw to let him go to Cincinnati during the middle of 1915 to fulfill his managerial ambition. In the deal by which Matty went to the Reds, the Giants also gave to Eddie Roush and William McKee in exchange for "Buck" Herzog, retiring Cincinnati leader, and Wade Kilgiver.

The Reds finished last in 1916 but improved rapidly under Matty's leadership, landing fourth place in 1917 and third place the following year, his last with the club.

Mathewson responded to the call to war at the close of the abbreviated season of 1918 and served with distinction overseas. He returned to become a coach with the Giants, holding that post until 1920, when he became seriously ill from the effects of being "gassed" during the war and faced a battle for his life with tuberculosis.

Courage Remained.
Displaying the courage which won him many diamond victories, Matty fought, and won the battle for his health during nearly three years of treatment at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Pronounced practically cured, he returned to New York in the fall of 1922 to witness the world's series triumph of his old team-mates, the Giants, over the New York Yankees.

Resored in health, Mathewson was eager to get back into the game and when early in 1923, an old friend and admirer, Emil E. Fuchs, prominent New York attorney, engineered a deal by which a New York syndicate obtained control of the Boston Braves from George W. Grant, "Big Six" was persuaded to take the club presidency.

Mathewson thus took his place among the few playing stars who rose to executive power in the game, a list which included Charles Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox; Clark Griffith of Washington; Branch Rickey, of the St. Louis Cardinals; John McGraw, of the New York Giants; Jimmy McAlister, A. G. Spalding and John M. Ward.

Mathewson, baseball experts agreed, possessed all the attributes of a brilliant moundsman as well as those of a great athlete—

After conducting a successful business, they moved to Dixon, where Mr. Sandberg worked at the blacksmith trade for a number of years. They then moved to Fargo, S. D., where they are now extensive farmers. They report good crops in the north, although they had a killing frost before they left home. They made the trip from Dakota by automobile and while here expect to call on many of their friends.

Pretty—and Useful

How to be attractive though working is a simple matter indeed if you make the most of the attractive costumes that the market provides. This gay and festive material may be fashioned into a simple slip-like garment or apron that completely covers the frock, protecting it from mishaps, and in a most decorative fashion. This material comes in light or dark tones, and in big or little patterns so that every taste may be served.

C. and C. Club was Entertained Tuesday

Miss Beulah Pinkerton delightfully entertained "The C and C Club" at her home Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in playing games and in sewing. Light refreshments were served at the close of the evening and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

FASHION HINTS—

Colorful Embroidery.—One of the most popular forms of trimming for evening dresses is a combination of colorful embroidery and colored beads, done in small patterns.

Coats Are Straight.—Pumps for this season are very simple in cut but are often embellished by the most elaborate of buckles.

Elaborate Buckles.—Though coats show the flare that gresses have, the straight coat is by no means lost in the race and many of the smartest models keep to the straight line.

Striking Ensemble.—A striking ensemble for evening consists of a gown of coal-colored velvet and a wrap of the same, banded with white fox.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—All women are divided into three classes: the mother, the lover, and the worker types.

So said Schopenhauer, the great German writer. But that was a long time ago.

Today we have a new type . . . the pirate type.

At any rate, that's what Mr. Gallagher of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," the famous vaudeville pair, has to say:

"I believe in women. But I'm not used to girls," says Mr. Gallagher. "The girls in this country are getting everything."

The occasion was a courtroom trial where Mr. Gallagher asked a New York judge to make Marie Chase, his former sweetheart, return to him 299 which she said she "borrowed" from him.

Marie had insisted that Mr. Gallagher was holding a trunkful of her clothes.

"She'd take my bathtub if she could lift it," Mr. Gallagher went to the judge, when that dignitary ordered him to return the clothes to Marie.

"Sure, give the girls anything they ask for, even the golden gate," were the parting words of Mr. Shean, the well-known partner of Mr. Gallagher.

The notion that the modern girl is a pirate is not the theory of only Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean.

Some dozen or so years ago Mr. Owen Johnson wrote about them in his book, "The Salamanders"—a story of beautiful young gold-diggers who made a business of taking flowers and dinners and money from men, and giving nothing in return.

But I had the shock of my life the other day when one of the most delectable young flappers of my acquaintance told me that her Boy Friend bought the cute sports hat she happened to be wearing.

"But you borrowed the money, you mean," I said.

She shook her bobbed head. "No," she pipped in the frankest way imaginable. "No. Jack bought me the hat. We were downtown for lunch, and we happened to see it in the window, so, we just went in and got it."

I gasped.

"If we should ever get married, he'll have to buy my clothes, and he may as well get a taste of it now," she added. "And what's the diff, anyway? I don't see anything so awful in taking a hat from a man."

The only way I can explain this sort of behavior is that some of the young things that are growing up have an entirely new code.

In the days when I was in my teens and that is not so very long ago, a girl took flowers and candy from a man, and nothing else . . . unless she was engaged to him. Then, of course, he gave her jewelry if his pocketbook permitted it.

But last Easter the daughter of one of my friends came home from boarding school with a new black georgette negligee. She explained proudly that whom she's engaged brought it from Europe with him!

Her mother insisted that she send it back to him.

"But why?" daughter wailed. "All the girls have silk stockings and things that the boys have given them. . . . You're so old-fashioned. Mother!"

She was really indignant when her mother packed up the negligee and sent it back to her future son-in-law.

It's not true that all girls are of this "polite pirate" type. The majority of young women that are growing up today have the same viewpoint as their mothers had, as regards men.

But it's also true that there's another sort that is an out-and-out gold-digger, who'll take anything from any body, so long as it is valuable.

Breakfast—Grapes, cereal, thin cream, ham omelet, bran muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of potato soup, toasted wafers, apple-celery-nut salad, toasted bran muffins, oatmeal cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of chicken, candied sweet potatoes, creamed lima beans, jellied cucumber salad, whole wheat bread, frozen custard, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

Very often a favorite cookie makes the glass of milk disappear more easily and quickly when one is less than six and not particularly fond of milk. If a child four years of age has plenty of milk, vegetables and cereals with soft cooked eggs he needs little meat. He must have milk in his diet, if not plain to drink then in soups and "creams."

Casserole of Chicken.—One spring chicken weighing from 3 to 4 pounds dressed, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup thin cream, 1 1/2 cups fresh mushrooms, 1 tablespoon flour.

Wash chicken and cut in pieces for serving. Spread each piece with butter and arrange in a casserole. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and add boiling water. Cover and cook in a hot oven for one hour. Add cream and broken and cleaned mushrooms and cook, uncovered, for ten minutes.

Work flour to a smooth paste with a little cold milk and stir into the gravy. Let boil five minutes and serve. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

DELIGHTFUL EVENT AT COLONIAL INN—Even though it was rainy Tuesday over one hundred supervisors and county officials and their wives of Ogle county, dined at the Colonial Inn. During the dinner hour they were entertained with a musical program and after dinner Judge Harry Edwards delivered a very interesting speech and other short talks were made by the different county officials and everyone was well pleased with the day's program.

There was no Hebrew word for it, researchers have shown, so it came down through various translations under an erroneous name. Archeological discoveries have borne out this diagnosis.

Ladies of G. A. R. Meeting Monday

The Ladies of the G. A. R. Dixon Circle No. 73, held their regular meeting Monday afternoon in G. A. R. hall, with a very good attendance of officers, members and comrades. Business was transacted as usual. Plans were completed for a fancy work and food sale to be held soon, and the members are requested to watch the paper for the date to be announced later.

Past President May Brookner Cupp gave a very interesting talk about the National Convention held at Grand Rapids, Mich., which she attended and Comrade Charles Johnson also gave a talk about the convention which the ladies all enjoyed. The meeting closed in regular form, to meet again Monday evening, Oct. 19th.

NOT WORSE; MAYBE DIFFERENT.

The head of the woman's department of the Washington police force has given out an interview in which she asserts that morals of the modern girl rapidly are going from bad to worse. She cites conditions she has discovered as a police woman.

Perhaps she only has learned more as a police woman than she knew before. She has not made a discovery. She only has obtained a lot of first-hand information about old situations that she heard of previously only through gossip, perhaps.

There are a few peculiar characteristics given to humanity that appear to have been for its welfare. One is the tendency to remember the more enjoyable things of life. It makes the past seem pleasant and softens the ills of the present. It prevents us from carrying all of the ills of the past and the present at the same time.

Another is that the parent always seems old to the child. Parents at 35 or 40 are as old to their offspring as they are at 60 or 65. That perpetuates the relationships as they should be.

Another is that mature people are prone to think the younger generation more frivolous, more immoral, more mischievous than their own. Ordinarily this human trait works toward the end of a better guardianship. It appears sometimes that it can be overworked.

As long as this inclination leads to more diligence and more watchfulness over the young, it is better for all. When it leads to continuous carping criticism, that is likely to be different. People experienced with childhood do not believe the effect is good if a child repeatedly is told that it is bad. Youth is daring, and if told repeatedly it is worse than its parents were, it is likely to feel that unless it is bad, is immoral, that it is not keeping up with the youth of its day.

If all are pronounced bad, the answer of one must be that he is not worse than all others.

When one of the Roosevelt boys was being quizzed about his relations with other boys, his answer was:

"My father says there are big boys and little boys and good boys and bad boys, and that's all the kinds of boys there are."

Class distinction was established, but the principal classes were the good and the bad. It is not a bad class distinction to establish in the minds of the youth. To put them all into one class and call that class bad gets nowhere with reform.

It is hard to believe that girls are worse than in other generations. Times are different. Society permits them to be more bold. There are more girls and there is more official prying.

MAKING THE DEAF HEAR.

Long ago the expression deaf and dumb passed out, as it was made possible for the deaf to talk. Now scientists are finding methods by which the deaf can be made to hear.

The term deaf and dumb was applicable when children were born deaf, but possessing the same vocal ability that normal persons have. The reason they were "dumb" was because they could not learn to talk without first hearing speech.

This handicap was overcome when means were devised by which the deaf could learn to talk, although their deafness prevented normal control of voices, because they could not hear. Schools designated as for the deaf and dumb became known as schools for the deaf.

Scientists at the University of Iowa have been working on a theory that among persons classified as deaf are many who can be made to hear. They have found that a man who can not hear a clock strike can hear a bird sing. This is a demonstration that the loudness is not so great an element as the quality of the vibration.

It has been discovered that the ordinary person hears 16,000 to 24,000 vibrations in a second; that the imperfect ear may hear from 125 to 3000; or, it may hear from 100 to 200, miss from 200 to 350 and hear the rest of the scale.

The audiometer, which has just been completed at the Iowa university for the school for the deaf, points out the scale of deafness, permits treatment for it, and opens the way for devices that will augment the sounds. Then use can be made of what are designated as the "islands of hearing."

WAGE CUTS.

The textile wage cuts, it is reported, came partly, at least, because the manufacturers, vexed by President Coolidge's refusal to boost the tariff on woolen goods, wanted to take a sly rap at him.

Let's hope that report is wrong. It would be a shameful thing if the wages of thousands of workers were cut merely because certain business men wanted to try to show the president that they think he is wrong.

When men tar and feather a woman for leading a dissolute life, as a southern mob did the other night, it is always a question whether they are moved by righteous zeal or suffering from a guilty conscience complex.

No, the senate won't change its rules. But the next senator who indulges in an oratorical marathon will find it just a little embarrassing to face the chair.

Two millions of tourists have visited the national parks this season, a fact that is reflected in the income tax returns of Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller.

BY CHARLES H. ROWELL

"I have come accompanied by eminent members of all political parties in the French parliament," said Finance Minister Joseph Caillaux.

What that will mean to Caillaux the event will show.

But what it would have meant to Woodrow Wilson is history.

It would have meant personal and national victory, and American leadership of the world.

It would have saved years of the chaos of European readjustment, and more gain to America, at less cost to Europe, that anything that can now be hoped from the debt payments.

It would, in fact, have changed the history of the world. Teamwork, and the co-operation of leaders of all the parties, put through the Washington Conference.

It would have put through the Wilson ideals. One man's temperamental onehandedness lost the world more than can ever be measured, after the same man's idealism and shown the way.

Unless the ban on the entry to this country is Saklatvala, Communist member of Parliament, was at the request of the British government—in which case Britain should take open responsibility—the soundest opinion will be that the exclusion was a mistake of judgment.

But not for the reasons usually given. It is not a matter merely of "free speech."

The right peacefully to agitate for a change in the form of our government belongs to Americans, but not to foreigners.

We have not only the right, but the duty, to exclude from our shores foreigners who come to preach doctrines whose preaching we should not interfere with from our own citizens.

And, as to Saklatvala's attacking the British government, we have already let DeValera do that, and Britain has let Saklatvala do it in the British Parliament itself.

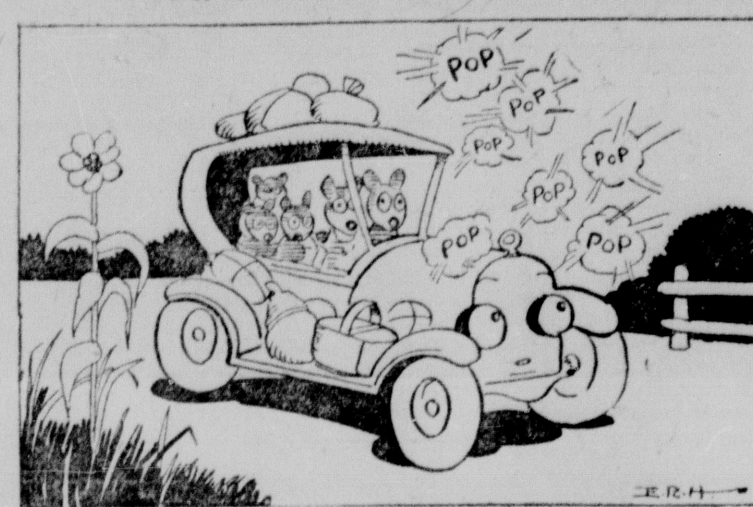

So neither free speech nor international comity is involved.

The only thing that is involved is the absurdity of putting an American censorship on the Inter-Parliamentary Union, which is not an

No. 16—A NEW WAY TO POP CORN

"My goodness! A cylinder must be missing dreadfully to sputter like that," said Daddy.

Daddy Cracknuts and Mrs. Cracknuts were chugging happily along in their little automobile to the place where the big chestnut tree grew. The sky was as blue as June and big white clouds floated around in it like froth on soda water.

You would never have dreamed that Jack Frost had been snooping around the night before with his hammer.

But he had. He'd been cracking nut-burrs open—big prickly chestnut burrs! He cracked them so wide open that the satin brown nuts spilled down onto the ground.

Daddy Cracknuts and his wife were going to lay in their winter supply. They had given Chirk Chipmunk a lift as far as the popcorn patch near the buckwheat field.

When they got there Chirk hopped out, and on they went until they came to the chestnut tree.

And there, if you please, were Scramble and Scamper Squirrel Cracknuts, their sons, waiting for them.

"Hello, Daddy! Hello, Ma! We thought we'd surprise you," they called from the tree. "We've been here since early morning."

"Well, I declare!" said Mr. and Mrs. Cracknuts happily. "This is quite a family party. Are there many nuts?"

"Oodles!" sang out Scramble. Mrs. Cracknut started to fill baskets, while Daddy and the boys gathered.

And when they started on their homeward trip, the little car was full nearly to the ceiling.

"We are going to have a fine pantry full of stores for the winter," said Mrs. Cracknuts. "It is certainly—"

Suddenly she stopped. "There's Chirk Chipmunk!" she cried. "We forgot all about him. And he has a bag full of stuff. Where shall we put him?"

American body, and whose proceedings are its business and not ours.

If it does not want Saklatvala, it should do the excluding.

THE TANGLE

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE LITTLE MARQUISE, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER—CONTINUED:

"When Condon came back to the office from the station," began my husband, "where he had gone late this afternoon to meet Mrs. Atherton, he told me, Leslie, that you also were at the station. He said you had sent me word that Mrs. Atherton would not be down to the office this evening as you were going to take her home and visit with her awhile. I took this to mean that you would not be home for dinner."

"At first I thought I would bounce in on you and Mrs. Atherton and insist upon you both going out to eat with me and then, I must confess, that I felt a little hurt that you had not asked me yourself to do this."

"You know how I hate to eat alone, and I was a little stung by you, anyway. I saw Miss Stimpson putting on her hat to go home and I asked her to go to dinner with me."

She accepted, stipulating that we should go somewhere out of the hot, dusty city. This, of course, I was very glad to do for I had been working very hard all day. We went to

"Well, I declare!" said Daddy Cracknuts. "I wonder! Hello, Chirk, how are you ever going to get in here. We're as full as a box of monkeys."

"I don't know," said Chirk. "Unless I sit on the roof. I'm not very heavy."

"But your bag?" cried Mrs. Cracknuts. "Where shall we put it?"

"I dunno," said Chirk ruefully. "I ate all the buckwheat I could hold and I've still got my cheeks full although you'd never notice it, as my cheeks go down to my shoulders, but I thought I'd better lay in a little shelled popcorn for winter."

"What did you shell it for?" asked Scramble.

"It's easier to carry," said Chirk. "I brought an old salt bag along."

Suddenly Daddy had an idea. "I'll tell you what to do. Put your popcorn in beside the engine. That's it! Set it right up. It can't get dirty. It's in a bag, you see."

"It might spill," said Chirk. "I couldn't find anything to tie it."

"I'll go slowly," said Daddy. "You hop up on top, now, and hold on tight."

"Pretty soon they were on their way again. But they hadn't gone a mile when "pop."

"I must have a blowout," said Daddy.

"Pop!" went something again. "Pop, pop, pop!"

"My goodness! A cylinder must be missing dreadfully to sputter like that," said Daddy. "I'll have to stop at the Twin Garage and get it fixed. Just listen."

"Pop, pop, pop, pop, pop, pop!"

When they got to the garage and lifted the lid, there was Chirk's popcorn all nicely popped from the heat of the engine.

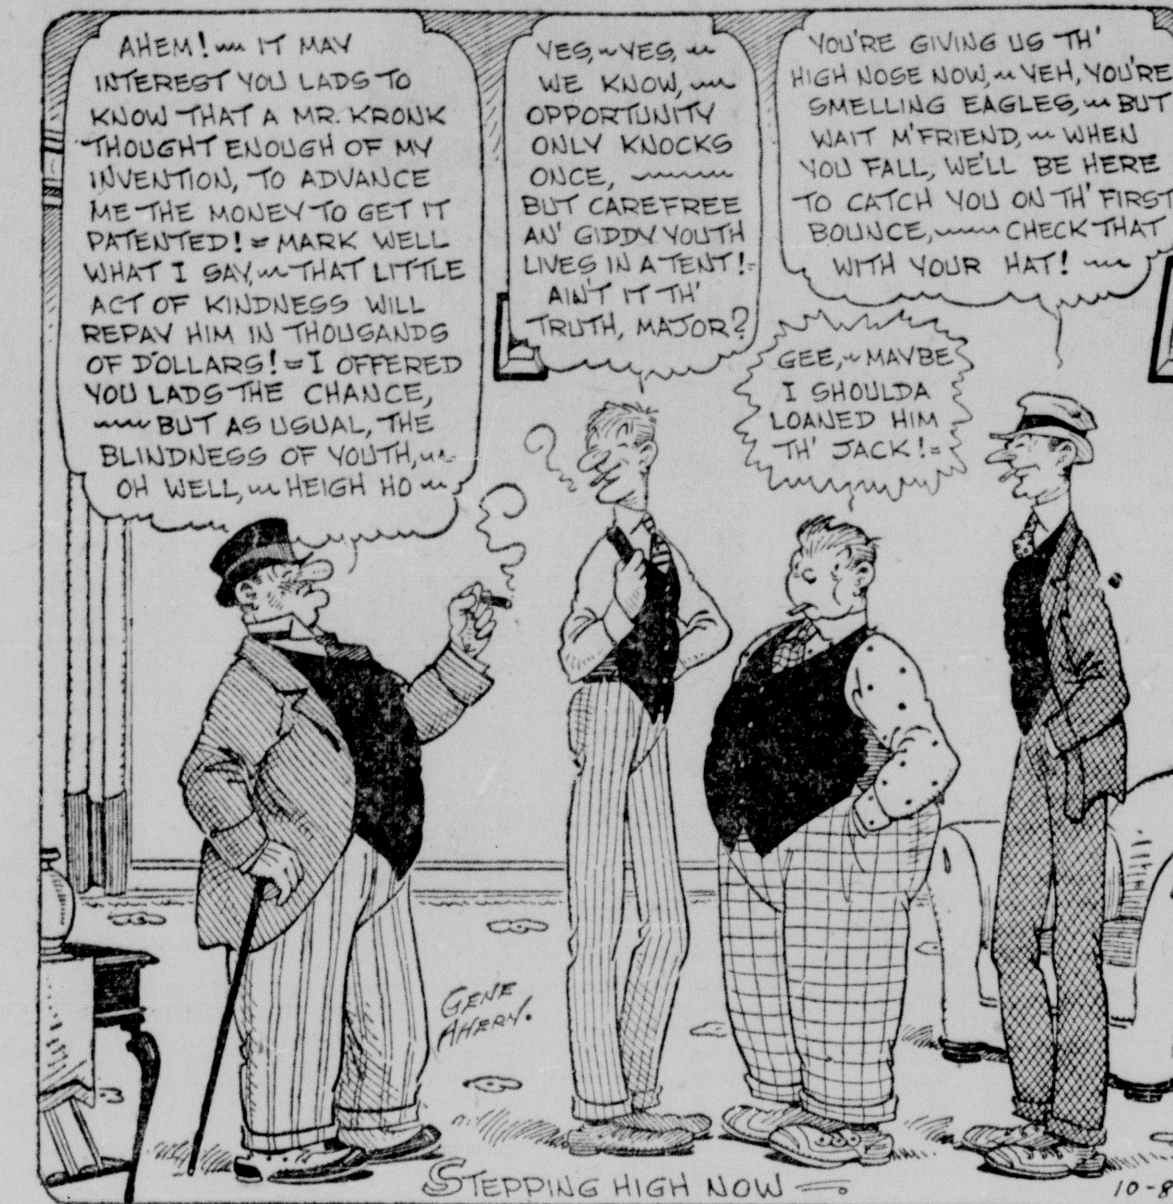

Everybody had a feast and a good laugh.

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Resolutions calling for the removal of international tariff and economic barriers, alternation of commercial treaties and for studies of the world's parliamentary systems, were placed before the Interparliamentary Union conference's final session here today.

That is not alone because of its selling price. The value is in performance, endurance and low operating cost. Such qualities are outstanding long after the price is forgotten.

Hudson prices are lowest because tremendous volume has made possible economical methods of manufacture. The world's largest production of Sixes—Hudson and Essex—opens economies that are not possible in a smaller production.

Through increase of quality, greater sales result and volume economies that permit lower prices. There you have the reason for Hudson's leadership in value, in price, in sales.

It explains why Hudson with the patented Super-Six principle has distinctive smoothness, long life, wide performance range, and why every Hudson owner is so enthusiastic.

JOHNSON IS GIVEN
GREATEST CREDIT;
PIRATES ADMIT IT

Pittsburgh is Absolutely Helpless Before His Speedy Curves

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates, borne down in their first attempt to board the flagship Washington, are resigned today for a new attack, with Vic Aldridge, former Chicagoan, against one of the great moist ball hurlers of the present day, Stanley Coveleskie.

The Senators of young Stanley Harris, one game ahead as the result of their 4-1 conquest of the buccanniers in the first contest of the world's series at Forbes Field yesterday are jubilant. Walter "Barney" Johnson, veteran of almost two decades, led them to the victory that they most desired.

Only five times did the highly touted sluggers of Pittsburgh menace the great one from Humbolt, Kas., one safe blow coming from the bat of Pie Traynor to furnish the Pirates only score. It was a home run into the far stands in right center. From that time Barney was master and only three other opponents reached second base. In his remarkable conquest Johnson struck out ten men.

Game Was Johnson's

Managers, players and spectators agreed that the game belonged to Johnson. He stood out boldly in a contest that developed some flashy play in the infield. At the end, his right hand swollen from his gripping of the ball, he attributed his success to the steadfast play of the men behind him.

"They did wonderfully," he said, "and I am proud of them. With such aid I could have gone on for several more innings without serious trouble. They are a great lot of ball players."

Praise came to the big fellow from his own manager, Stanley Harris, and from the manager of the opposing camp, Bill McKechnie.

"Our defeat can be attributed to Johnson's pitching," McKechnie said. "We couldn't hit him and when a team cannot hit, it cannot win. Today will be a different story."

His First Victory

It was Johnson's first victory in a full world's series game and he made it one long to be remembered, his workmanlike delivery mowing down some of the National League's greatest sluggers with surprising ease. Hazen Cuyler, heralded as one of the most powerful batsmen of modern times, scored a lone single and never was dangerous. Even a hero of the past, Stuffy McInnis, appeared like a child with a toy when he attempted to solve the tall Senator's delivery. McInnis had one turn at bat, replacing Meadows, and then struck out.

Meadows, bespectacled boxman of the Pirates, hurled manfully against what seemed, after the first couple of innings, to be almost certain defeat. At one time three singles filled the bases for the Senators without a man being retired. Meadows struck out Ruel and Johnson on seven pitched balls and had two strikes on Sam Rice when the Washington outfielder shot a single into center field which added two runs to a homer by Joe Judge a winning margin.

Walter Used Curves

Johnson for the most part employed a fast curve, and only in a few instances loosed his tremendous speed. Max Carey of the Pirates was hit twice and survived the blows.

Coveleskie, with his deceiving spitball, has been regarded as the man the Pirates will have to beat to win the series and they now have their test. After suffering with a strained back for several days, he reports himself ready for the conflict and Harris was definite in announcing the choice.

If Covey wins today, the Pirates can be assured of a view of a 1919 world's series pitching star, Dutch Reuther, now a member of the Senators after a journey through Brooklyn. Reuther is a left hander, supposedly just made for the right Harris conveys confidence in Reuther's ability to uphold his end of the burden. Reuther is expected to perform in the first game in Washington tomorrow, opposing Emil Yde, another portlander.

Cubs and Sox Battled
19 Innings to a Tie

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, nearing his 39th birthday, veteran pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, and Ted Blankenship, youthful Oklahoma cowboy, hurler of the Chicago White Sox, have turned in one for the book.

For 19 innings, until darkness called a halt, they hurled baseballs to a total of 128 batters in the initial game of the Chicago city series. Alexander was touched for 20 hits, half of them after the 12th frame, while Blankenship, allowing 11, permitted only two after the tenth.

Renewal of hostilities today brings Lyons to the box for the Sox and Wilbur Cooper for the Cubs.

AIR GAME AGAINST BATTERING RAM IN GAME SATURDAY

Ohio Likely to Resort to Passing Against Stagg's Bunch

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A game in the air against battering ram plunging may be the story of the Ohio State-Chicago Maroon football session in the Western Conference premiere here on Saturday.

Coach Wiley is stressing forward passing and trick plays in the final Buckeye practices before the team entrains tonight for Chicago. Captain Cunningham is turning his basketball ability and six feet of height to good advantage as a pass receiver.

As line smasher, Coach Stagg is grooming Frelms Marks, "Five Yards" McCarty and Timme, and giving attention to training the toe of Bob Curley.

Two dozen Indiana players entrain today for Detroit with Ann Arbor as the final objective. Ready to extend hospitality are the Yeomen, now tapering off a week of strenuous practice. Captain Brown may be out with an injured foot but he expects to be back in shape for the Wisconsin game Oct. 17.

Grange Back in Game.

Harold "Red" Grange, Illinois captain and All-American back, is recovered from his cold and back in moleskins. It is indicated he will take the field against Butler Saturday. Wisconsin's scrimmages for the week are over and passing and punting is the principal practice for Franklin. Line shifts and workouts for the game with Chicago, Oct. 17, occupy Northwestern, meeting Carleton in its last preliminary.

Three new Hawkeyes are likely to start against Grinnell on Saturday—Graham at end and Joesting and Mason. Purdue's forward walk is strengthened with Spencer at guard and Winkler at tackle, in rehearsals for De Pauw. Iowa is perfecting a running attack for St. Louis.

Notre Dame with the Army game in the offing, is starting intensive drill for the annual intersectional melee. Tom Hearndon, heretofore paired with Boyle at half back, has been shifted to fullback, due to the absence on Enright and Hanousek, injured.

New Chicago President
Defends School Athletics

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(AP)—President Max Mason of the University of Chicago does not believe a commercialized athletic situation exists in the leading colleges of the country.

"Of course there is enormous popular interest in football," he says, "and when you have such an interest there is bound to be over-emphasis. But as long as football remains a token of school loyalty, a means of building character, popularity will not harm it."

Whether coaches are overpaid depends on the coach, in his opinion.

"A man who is able to develop character, rather than merely to win games, and who exercises a good influence of manliness and fairness upon his players, is valuable. The coach whose sole object is to win, however he may, is a liability."

First Moments
Fighting Fires
Most Important

In fighting any fire the first few minutes are of utmost importance. The extent of a fire is often dependent upon the steps taken to combat it at the start and for this reason the value of fire fighting appliances in all buildings, including dwellings, is unquestioned. Home owners who have had fire extinguishers, small hose streams and water pails available in time of fire have been more than repaid for their foresight.

Chemical extinguishers are usually of three types, soda acid, carbon tetrachloride and foam. The soda acid extinguisher contains a solution of bicarbonate of soda and a bottle of sulphuric acid which mixes with the former when the extinguisher is operated. This generates carbon dioxide gas under pressure and forces the solution out of the nozzle for a distance of about twenty feet. As the solution is likely to freeze at low temperatures, extinguishers of this type should be kept in warm places in winter. They are intended primarily for fighting ordinary small fires. They should be emptied and recharged annually in order to insure perfect operation when needed.

Carbon tetrachloride extinguishers depend upon the blanketing effect of their content to extinguish fires. They are effective in fighting electrical fires for their solution does not conduct electricity. They may also be used advantageously in small oil or grease fires and are therefore well adapted to automobiles and motor boats.

The foam type of extinguisher contains two solutions which when mixed generate a light foam. This extinguishes the fire by excluding air which is necessary for combustion. Foam extinguishers are particularly adapted to oil fires. They must be protected against freezing in cold weather.

The insurance Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce suggests every dwelling be equipped with some form of first aid fighting appliances. One or more extinguishers, a pail of sand, water buckets and a garden hose attached to a faucet in the cellar or outside of the house will be helpful. All members of the household should be instructed in the proper use of this equipment that they may be prepared for emergencies.

THE LIMITED MAIL

by ELMER E. VANCE
Novel by William Basil Courtney

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros.
"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a dramatization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

The coming of Caroline Dale as a waitress in the station lunch room at Crater City has created a sensation throughout the town. For one thing, it caused Bob Wilson, engineer, to be ten minutes late in taking out his train, to the dismay of Moran, the yardmaster. At their single meeting—at breakfast, Caroline also developed a strong interest in him, and she was surprised to learn later that he had been a tramp.

CHAPTER V—Continued

Bobby then would amuse himself in his quaintly precocious way until "Daddy Jim" got up. Living with the two men had made Bobby self-reliant and old-fashioned, for despite their zeal they could not supply in his impressionable boyhood life the softening influence of a gentle young mother's care; consequently, he was a swaggering, youthful copy of his "two" fathers, reflecting the essential manliness of the one and the intense idealism of the other. Jim's whole interest during his hours at home centered upon the fair-haired, sturdy little chap who was a vital monument of rosy flesh and warm blood to the sweetheart and mother whose picture was enshrined fondly in the foremost place on the parlor mantle.

Jim's out-trips on the Limited left Crater City in the early evening, and if Bob was not home then, so the routine went, Jim on his way to work left Bobby at Mrs. O'Leary's "to be called for."

In accordance with their accustomed habits, Jim and Bobby marched into Mrs. O'Leary's back yard this day and found the estimable Widow in one of her few respites of seated ease, waiting for the

He had cast his cowboy play-lasso over his Dad and the strange girl.

"supper potatoes to boil." Bobby dropped the toys he had brought and clambered into her wide lap for a kiss, while Jim, after a brief exchange of normal pleasantries, started on his way.

"Oh, there's me front door bell!" Mrs. O'Leary called after him, while he was making his way around the side yard. "I'm too lazy and tired to get up, Jim, boy, will you kindly be after tellin' whoever 'tis to please come around back."

Then the latest victim to the day's epidemic was laid low, for Jim, hastily rounding the corner of the house to carry out Mrs. O'Leary's wish, collided with Caroline, almost knocking her suitcase from her hand. He stood palsied under the sudden and glorious spell of her enchantment trying to stammer an apology but only able to utter barely audible and unintelligible sounds. And when she smilingly voiced regret for her share of the mishap it only increased his helpless amazement at the gorgeous phenomenon she represented.

"I was coming around because I thought I heard voices. I am looking for Mrs. O'Leary."

Jim managed to get off his hat and indicate in his absurd confusion by a weird combination of smiles and signs and broken words that he was sorry for being so clownish and would be glad to take her to Mrs. O'Leary. He searched for her suitcase, and with a gracious smile she granted him the privilege of serving her.

Mrs. O'Leary lifted her always heavy and mostly always weary body out of the chair in surprise when she saw the stranger Jim was bringing toward her.

"Mr. Bramley sent me here," said Caroline after introducing herself in a shyly smiling manner that found a warm reflection in Mrs. O'Leary's broad face and shrewdly practised eyes. "He thought you could give me room and board. I stayed last night at the Commercial Hotel because—"

"You poor child in that place! Of course I can accommodate you, Miss— and gladly—Sa-a-a-y, look here, Jimmy boy, you'll have no eyes left for the sorting of your mail, and be late in the bargain, if you stand there staring so. Go on with you, now—"

Startled as a small boy caught stealing doughnuts, Jim blushed and stammered, the more so because Caroline bent a friendly, grateful glance upon him. "I'll relieve you of my suitcase," she nodded, "and thank you very much."

Jim surrendered it to Mrs. O'Leary, who with motherly domination refused to let Caroline touch it. Still Jim lingered, until Mrs. O'Leary at last read the plea in his eyes aright—and introduced him to Caroline. No one, meanwhile, had been paying any attention to Bobby. The effects of this non-surveillance of natural rascality was made apparent with startling abruptness at this moment when a wild and gleeful whoop and a jerk that knocked Jim and Caroline together announced the successful consummation of a stunt which he had been slyly preparing for some minutes; he had cast the big loop of his cowboy play-lasso over his Dad and the strange girl, and was now backing away on his heels at the end of the tightened rope, chortling like a mischievous terrier.

When Jim took hold of Caroline's arms to steady her as she toppled against him, he felt a dazzling sense of unreality, as though he were touching the shadowy and uncanny substance of a beautiful dream. He regretted Mrs. O'Leary's efficiency in rescuing them from their tight and awkward predicament. The irate widow shook a threatening rope's end at Bobby, who merely scuttled out of reach and yelled:

"Why are you looking at that lady so funny, Daddy?"

Thereby winning for himself the fun of a grim chase by Mrs. O'Leary—while Jim departed in red-faced haste, and Caroline remained alone on the field, smiling faintly. Mrs. O'Leary returned in a moment, unsuccessful and out of breath—but laughing.

"The devil in that little one comes from the inelegant example of his 'Daddy Bob,' I'm thinking. What can you expect from a baby that was taught to stand on his head and given sling shots to play with before he was two years old?"

"Oh," said Caroline in sudden light, "then that was the Jim Fowler with whom Engineer Wilson lives?"

"The same," said the Widow, "and they're thicker'n a pair of moths in a muff. In all me born days I never seen men cotton to each other so—I guess the person ain't living who could come between them two. Why, do you be knowin' Bob Wilson already, Miss?" in some surprise.

"He—I—" Caroline was visibly embarrassed. "He was pointed out to me this morning, ma'am." After a shy sidelong glance at Mrs. O'Leary during their walk toward the porch, while Bobby played horse with the Widow's apronstrings, Caroline added: "He seemed—very nice!"

"He—they're both—" but Mrs. O'Leary, holding the door open for Caroline to enter, suddenly became speechless in a deep fit of thoughtfulness. She found herself involuntarily contrasting the light in Jim's eyes when he was introduced to Caroline, to the light in Caroline's eyes when she mentioned Bob Wilson. She found herself reconsidering whether or not her statement of a moment before, that "nobody" could ever come between Jim and Bob, had not been just a trifle too sweeping. For now the Widow was pricked by keenly instinctive speculations as to what might happen when an Eve came into an Eveless Garden.

Therefore, the Widow was thoughtful.

ALLEGED ROBBERS OF TWO BANKS ARE IN CHAMPAIGN JAIL

Captured After Chase in Automobile Late Yesterday Afternoon

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Eugene Rodgers, 32, Fred Richardson alias Fred Chandler, 21 and Sam Grubb, 26, all of Cerro Gordo, Ill., were lodged behind the bars of the Champaign county jail by Sheriff John Gray and his deputies last night.

The three men now imprisoned are declared to be the three who held up and robbed the State Bank of Lake City, Sept. 18 of $200.50 and to have staged the robbery of the State Bank of Jewett, Ill., five days later, fleeing with the sum $1,600.

They were not seen until Sunday at Cerro Gordo when they were recognized by two farmers who saw them on the day of the Lake City robbery.

Joseph Newell, investigator of the Illinois State Bankers Association, was summoned and yesterday Sheriff Gray and Deputy Elmer Wolfe of Champaign county and Sheriff Ethel of St. Clair county with Deputy Ernest Lindsley attempted to place all three under arrest.

Rodgers was captured without resistance. Chandler fled into the country at top speed in an automobile. Immediately Sheriff Gray, Deputy Wolfe and the two farmers took up the chase in one car while Sheriff Ethel and Deputy Lindsley followed in another. Chandler, it is said, averaged 45 miles an hour for four miles before he was forced to halt.

Placed in Sheriff Gray's automobile, the parties started back to Cerro Gordo, but had proceeded but a short distance when they observed Grubb fleeing in the opposite direction. Another chase followed and Grubb was captured.

Sheriff Gray stated late last night that unquestionably these men committed the robberies alleged to them and that their protests of not guilty will bring them nothing.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

People in this community will have plenty of bazaar to attend if they wish to. During the course of the next few weeks there will be three bazaars staged within the city limits. First: the Royal Neighbors will hold their annual affair at the hall on Oct. 15; the following week the Eastern Star will put on a bazaar. To top this off the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will sponsor their annual "Thanksgiving" bazaar.

Mr. William Ulth broke a bone in her wrist last Wednesday while getting out of her husband's car. Mrs. Ulth wanted to go into J. S. Archer store and so Mr. Ulth stopped the car on the crossing just opposite the store and while she was getting out of the car, Mr. Ulth released the brakes and the car moved ahead, throwing Mrs. Ulth down upon the street bruising her, and breaking the bone in her wrist. The wrist was immediately taken care of at the local hospital.—E. L. M.

drink and philosophize as he lives with his native wife. That strange assortment of people who are stranded in Joe Lorn's hotel become jumpy and nervous under the incessant downpour of rain, which starts out as a conflict in opposing wills and ends as a conflict with self.

The psychological interest centers in one Sadie Thompson (Jeanne Eagels), of doubtful character and unknown antecedents, and her conflict with the Reverend Mr. Davidson, a missionary who confuses his own views with the religion Christ taught. Sadie is a light hearted, beautifully irresponsible being, totally untroubled by anything so complex as a definite moral system, though true enough to her scheme of things. Reverend Davidson is a fanatic, who confuses instinct with sin, and who attempts to repress in everyone else the natural desires which he thinks he has crushed out of his own life. That a person should be as completely joyous and unmoral as Sadie is more than he can bear. He hounds the girl. The victory of his scheme of things is complete. But he has reckoned without himself and his own starved desires, which so long have been held in leash by the fanaticism which is only indulgence in another form. So, after all, it is Sadie who wins.

Union hall was packed full of people last evening to see the Modern Woodmen moving pictures, given by the local camp of Woodmen. The pictures were instructive as well as entertaining. The first picture, "The Hour Glass" showed several phases of the Modern Woodmen, with special emphasis given to the Woodman Sanatorium, located at Woodman, Colorado, where thousands of Woodmen have been successfully treated for tuberculosis. Various scenes of the Home were shown of the treatment given patients while there, also of the numerous buildings and grounds, together with views of the scenery in the mountains of Colorado.

"On the Go" gave views of the recent head camp and Forrester's Encampment held in Chicago last June. "The Old and the New" also showed scenes of the Encampment, together with views of various Woodmen offices.

The entertainment last evening was greatly enjoyed by all of the large number present. Director Korn, who is a former Dixon boy has promised to come to Dixon in the near future to give a talk on Woodcraft and his many friends in Dixon anxiously await his coming.

POLICY OF CHURCH CONSIDERED AT M. E. MEETING TODAY

Rock River Conference Has Report of Committee on Policy

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Discussion and action upon the public policy committee's report was the principal order of business today before the eighty-sixth annual session of the Rock River Conference, Methodist Episcopal church.

Submitted by the Rev. A. M. Pen-ing was given by Mrs. D. L. Brame. The speakers of the afternoon were Dixon ladies, Mrs. L. N. Deusch, secretary of the Dixon Womans Club and Mrs. O. F. Goeke, president of that organization. These ladies gave very interesting reports of the state federation held in Decatur which they attended as delegates. Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. L. Berryman, Mrs. D. L. Berry, Mrs. J. A. Vaupel, and Misses Cornelia Badger and Harriet Vaughan.

"We believe that foreign interferences in the affairs of China should be vigorously opposed by the Chinese people."

"We deplore the discrimination against Japan in our recent immigration act. This discrimination, together with the naval maneuvers about Hawaii, the visit of our fleet to Australia and our nation wide program of military training of civilians has served to destroy a large measure of the good will long and patiently developed between oriental nations and the United States."

"Motion pictures may be productive of good or evil, but up to date the balance of influence exerted by newell, chairman of the committee, the report contains several drastic and far-reaching conclusions relative to the policy of the church as regards industry, leisure, motion pictures, lawlessness, prohibition, divorce, intolerance, and world peace. Under the heading "world peace," the report states in part:

"We believe that the League of Nations has justified itself by its good works and must be judged by its successes rather than by its failures."

Approve World Court

"We heartily approve President Coolidge's proposal to put the United States into the international court, and urge the support of this proposal by our Illinois representatives and senators."

"We believe that foreign interferences in the affairs of China should be vigorously opposed by the Chinese people."

"We deplore the discrimination against Japan in our recent immigration act. This discrimination, together with the naval maneuvers about Hawaii, the visit of our fleet to Australia and our nation wide program of military training of civilians has served to destroy a large measure of the good will long and patiently developed between oriental nations and the United States."

"Motion pictures may be productive of good or evil, but up to date the balance of influence exerted by

"motion pictures is on the side of evil," the report states.

Decrying the scourge of crime in the United States, the report points out as a possible relief:

Self-Control in Home
"We believe the church can best serve the cause of law and order by laying down a definite program to create a larger measure of self-control in the home, an intelligent promotion of religious education, the creation of public conscience that will manifest itself in scrupulous observance of the law, pressure upon public officials to be faithful and intelligent in the discharge of their duty, and such active use of the ballot as shall guarantee efficient and dependable public servants."

"We affirm our faith in national prohibition."

"We request our bishops to consider the appointment of a commission for the study of divorce and for reports to our next general conference with a view of inaugurating an intelligent and nation-wide program to remove the causes of divorce."

Two Major Advantages Studebaker Alone Offers

1-One-Profit Value 2-Unit-Built Construction

THERE are (as you probably know) only two manufacturers who actually build their cars complete—make all their own bodies, engines, clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One of these is Ford—in the low priced field. The other is Studebaker in the fine car field.

Because we eliminate the extra profits and overhead that many other manufacturers have to pay to outside parts and body makers—we are able to use finer materials and workmanship—yet charge no more than competing cars.

One-Profit Plus Unit-Built

Under this One-Profit policy the entire car is designed, engineered and manufactured as a complete, coordinate harmonious unit in Studebaker plants. Being Unit-Built it functions as a unit. And this adds years to its life—gives you scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort—minimum repair costs—and, finally, higher resale value.

Examine the Standard Six Coach closely—make comparisons with other cars—and you will understand the full meaning of One-Profit value. It is called a coach only because it is the lowest priced closed car ever sold by Studebaker. But it is a quality car through and through.

Notice the durable wool upholstery. See the heavy ornamental hardware; the plate glass windows and windshield; the fine trim to hide all tacks; the clock and gasoline gauge on dash, automatic windshield cleaner; stop light, locks on ignition, steering gear, door and spare-tire carrier—all operated by a single key.

The crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces to eliminate vibration. And the motor is most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is a motor built for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour—not for excessive speed or spectacular stunts.

No Yearly Models

The Studebaker policy of "no yearly models" is a further protection to owners. Under this policy Studebaker cars are always up to date—we add improvements from time to time and do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

Come in—and let us demonstrate the Standard Six Coach without obligation on your part.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

The riding comfort of a motor car is not dependent upon its length, weight or cost, any more than the comfort of a home depends upon its size.

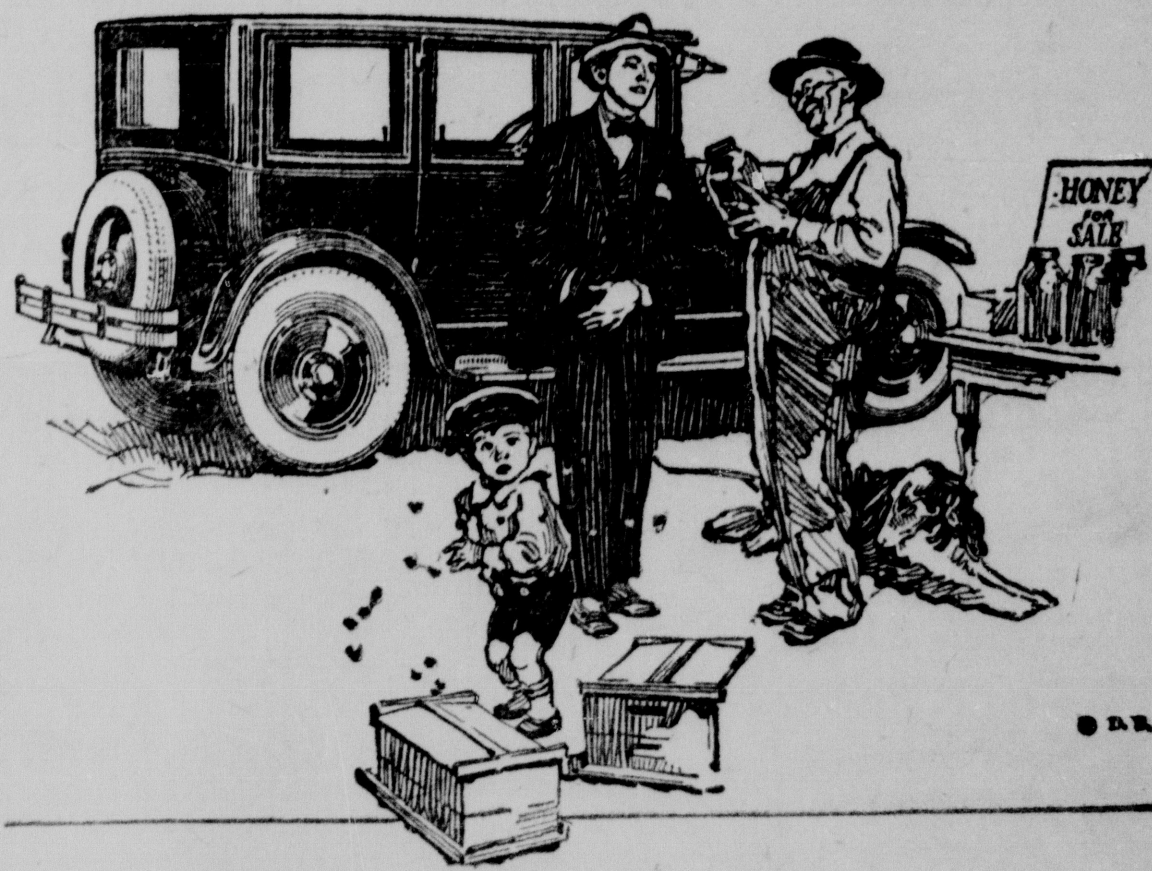

If the seats are deep enough and the proper distance from the floor; if the seat backs are correctly pitched for relaxation; if the upholstery is sufficiently stuffed and there is plenty of leg room; above all, if the springs are rightly designed and of proper length, you will have exceptional riding comfort. Otherwise, you will not.

Dodge Brothers, with characteristic thoroughness, studied and experimented with these details for years. Their findings were ultimately incorporated in the design of Dodge Brothers Motor Car—without question now a vehicle that ranks with the first in this vitally important feature.

The One who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PETER LYSTER has lost his memory from shell shock on the Western Front. Upon his return to London he fails to recognize

NAN MARRABY, the girl to whom he became engaged before going to France. Nan has returned to her home, due to the death of her stepmother, to take care of her three young stepbrothers. She is still in touch with JOAN ENDICOTT, in London, who is expecting her husband on leave and who told her that Peter and a fellow officer.

JOHN ARNOTT were spending their leave at the home of Arnott's widowed sister not far from the Murraby estate. Nan is jealous of Arnott's sister, and very much displeased with the attentions of

HARLEY SEPTON, a money lender, who claims to have been a friend of Peter's before he went away. Peter also failed to recognize her when they met. Sefton has told

Nan that both her father and Peter owe him great sums of money.

Nan is waiting through the woods near her home, crying over her fate, when she meets Peter. She tries to explain her fears and soon becomes quite friendly with "The Man Who Forgot." They have worked back to the fence surrounding the Murraby estate when Nan expresses a doubt of her ability to recall the title.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Tutts such a long time since I lived in the country, that I've forgotten the way to climb a stile," Nan said, her heart was hammering in her throat.

"The best way is to give me your hands—stand on the top bar and jump," he declared. "Give me your hands."

Nan was sure that he must feel that she was trembling, but he took her hands firmly and steadied her. "Now—one, two, three—jump!" he said.

His face was raised to her as she stood above him—she could see his eyes plainly in the faint moonlight, with their half-laughing, half-embarrassed expression.

His cap had got pushed a little to one side, and an obstinate lock of hair which she remembered never would lie down and behave had struggled out and lay across his forehead, giving him a singularly boyish appearance.

Nan looked at him, and suddenly the moonlight seemed blotted out and the whole world to be swimming around her. She swayed giddily, and would have fallen but for his upholding hands.

"Oh!" she said, weakly. "Oh, I'm falling."

But in a moment his arm was around her, and she was safely beside him on the soft grass.

He kept his arm about her for a moment; he made her stand with her back to the stile. There was a puzzled sort of look on his face.

"I'm afraid you really have forgotten about being a country girl," he said, presently.

Nan opened her eyes. "That's what it must be—I've never turned giddy before—how silly of me!"

She pushed her hair back from her forehead. "And now, having made an exhibition of myself for the second time," she said, "I think I had better go home, or there will be a third time, and you know what people say about the third time!"

Peter Lyster looked at her steadily. "Miss Murraby—will you tell me something?" he asked.

Nan was brushing a dried leaf from her sleeve. "Will it?" she echoed flippantly. "Why, of course." She raised her eyes to his face. "What is it?" she asked smiling.

But Peter was grave. "Tell me why you were crying when I met you," he said.

A little hat whirled by overhead, cutting the air with its gauzy wings; it flashed away like a shadow in the moonlight. Nan watched it mechanically—the fever in her veins seemed to have quieted; her face looked very young in the pale light.

Lyster came a step nearer. "Tell me," he said again.

"I can't," said Nan. "Oh, I can't!" Their eyes met.

"You mean that you won't?" Lyster asked.

Nan laughed then—a little reckless laugh. "Perhaps—some day," she said.

"Perhaps—some day," she said. "Lyster took off his cap and brushed the hair back from his forehead."

"I shall hold you to that promise," he said.

The morning brought Nan a letter

"My brother has spoken about you so often."

from Joan Endicott. The wonderful Tim had arrived, and apparently all was sunshine.

"I haven't really time to write at all," so she began her letter. "Tim is fidgeting round, begging me to go out with him, but I thought I ought just to write you a note and say how happy I am. I am wearing the pink blouse you made, and Tim says he has never seen me look so pretty. The time is flying—a whole day gone already. Nan—Tim says that he thinks the war will be over this year, but I can't help feeling that he only says it to comfort me. I think of you a great deal, and wonder how you are getting on, and if you have seen anything of Peter Lyster or Mr. Arnott. You know, Nan, I think Mr. Arnott was just a little taken with you! He looked at you such a lot, and the day he came here after you had gone to Leavenworth, he was most absurdly disappointed. I should love to see you settled down and happy. Nan—after all, Peter isn't the only man in the world. I told Tim about what had happened, and he was very sympathetic, but he says that life is too short to spend it in grieving, and that if anything happened to him he would rather know that I had found some man to look after me and be kind to me, than to think of me being unhappy all my life. Isn't it sweet and unselfish of him?"

Nan tossed the letter aside. It was so like Joan—full of little aimless trivialities. She wondered apprehensively if the day would ever come when she would have to go home and live with her again.

She resented Joan's very obvious hint about John Arnott.

"As if I could ever care for another man!" she told herself passionately.

Nan was changing her frock upstairs in the afternoon when she heard a car drive up the road and stop at the gate. She looked out of her window curiously, then the blood flew to her cheeks in a rush of crimson. John Arnott was getting out of the car; he turned to give his hand to a woman in black.

"His sister!" Nan told herself.

She rushed to the head of the stairs and called to the little maid.

"Are you dressed?—Mary—are you dressed?"

It was an enormous relief to get an answer in the affirmative; she whispered instructions over the balusters.

"Some people are calling—ask them in the drawing room, and say I will be down in a minute—oh, and Mary—keep the boys out of the way—and, for heaven's sake, mind that the cake doesn't burn—it's in the oven."

She twisted her hair up anyhow—her hands shook as she fastened her frock.

"I don't know why on earth I'm so excited," she thought. Her heart was pounding traitorously as she went down the stairs.

The drawing room door was closed, and Nan stood for a moment outside.

When at last she went into the room there was a little flush in her cheeks, but she smiled composedly enough as she went forward.

Arnott was standing staring at a picture. He wheeled round as the door opened. He began a clumsy introduction, but his sister cut him short.

"I have heard so much of Miss Murraby that there isn't any need for us to be formally introduced, John," she said. She gave Nan her hand.

"My brother has spoken of you so much, I feel as if I know you already," she said.

"You are very kind," Nan said, but her cheeks felt hot.

Arnott seemed to read her thoughts, for he said suddenly:

"Lyster came along with us, but he spotted your young brothers on the road and insisted on getting out and walking home with them, Miss Murraby. Topping little chaps, aren't they? They wouldn't have much to say to me, but they were all over Peter."

Nan's eyes shone. "Peter was always fond of children," she said, unthinkingly.

Arnott's sister looked up quickly. "You know Mr. Lyster well?" she asked, in faint surprise.

"Oh, no—at least . . ." Nan stammered and hesitated; she looked appealingly at John.

He rushed into the breach. "Miss Murraby has met him when we've been together once or twice," he said; "that is all . . ." He followed Nan to the tea-table. "I say, let me help," he urged. "I'm a duster at pouring out tea and passing cups and things."

Doris Mears watched them silently across the room; she was a slightly taller woman, rather below average height, with extremely small hands and feet of which she was inordinately proud.

"Will Mr. Lyster be coming along, then?" Nan asked presently; she tried hard to make her question appear casual, but to the other woman there was a sort of suppressed eagerness in her voice.

"He didn't say," she answered sweetly. "They all turned off into the woods. I shouldn't trouble to keep any tea for them."

"It's no trouble," Nan said. "The boys will be hungry, anyway."

"I'm not going to like her," was the dismayed thought in her heart.

"And she isn't going to like me, either."

She was ashamed of the instinct; she liked Arnott well enough to wish to like his sister also.

She took her cup and went over to sit down beside Doris. "I hear you have a little boy," she said. "I wish you had brought him with you."

Mrs. Mears laughed, and raised one small hand deprecatingly.

"He's a darling, but I'm a perfect wreck after 10 minutes with him, so I always leave him at home. He loves Peter, too, Miss Murraby—I'm afraid he gives him an awful time."

"Peter likes it," said Arnott; he spoke rather indistinctly as his mouth was full of cake. "Peter—hullo! here they come . . ."

Movement of Fruits and Vegetables Heavy

Chicago, Oct. 7—(AP)—The U. S. Bureau of Agriculture Economics announced today that fruit and vegetable growers along the Gulf of Mexico are figuring how much of the northern fruit and vegetable crops may be in storage in January when the new southern produce season becomes active. Meanwhile, the shipment of nearly 5,000 more carloads of fruits and vegetables in the last week, than during the corresponding period a year ago is an indication of continued earliness of the present season.

The total volume of fruits and vegetables filled 31,350 cars this week, three fourths of this volume were grapes, apples and potatoes.

Grape shipments are larger than those of any other fruit or vegetable, the present weekly movement of grapes, approximating ten thousand cars compared with 7,600 cars of apples and 5,900 cars of potatoes.

Apple shipments continue to increase, as fall varieties are being harvested. Northwestern apples in particular have been rolling forward rapidly and shipments are now approaching the peak.

The peach season is about ended. Peaches are still plentiful.

EDITH SLOTHOWER WON SECOND WITH INDUSTRIES ESSAY

Tells Why New Industries
Should Locate in This City

Winners of the second and third prizes in the contest conducted by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce in the Dixon schools were Edith Slothower and Lucille Case. Their papers on the subject, "Why New Industries Should Come to My Home City," are very interesting. The essay of Edith Slothower is as follows:

"My home city is Dixon, a town of about 11,000 situated on Rock River in northern Illinois. The Chicago North-Western and Illinois Central railways pass through Dixon, making it an ideal location for the shipping and receiving of freight.

"In Dixon, there are plenty of industrial building sites for sale, with moderate building prices and reasonable tax rates, in comparison with other small cities in this vicinity.

"There are several natural resources here for manufacturing, as well as good schools for education facilities of the children of factory employees.

"In recent years, a considerable number of residences have been built, these helping the housing shortage.

"Dixon is a center for the manufacturing of electricity, having a large steam, and also a hydro plant which are capable of furnishing electricity at a reasonable price for manufacturing.

"The merchants of this city carry a good line of merchandise making it an ideal shopping center.

"We are proud to say that Dixon has a splendid class of citizens to be employed. There is a building and loan association and three banks, as well as theaters, hotels and a hospital here.

"Dixon's business men are interested in Dixon, and so let us, the public try to improve Dixon by inviting new industries to come to our home city.

Lucille Case's Essay

The essay of Lucille Case follows: "Dixon, which is situated on Rock river has many advantages. It has 26 miles of pavement. A wonderful river for boating and canoeing, 350 acres of parks, eleven churches, good schools with an accredited high school, a fine library, theaters, Y. M. C. A., golf course, and many lodges. It also has excellent stores and splendid hotels.

"Dixon is growing steadily, for it has had an increase of 3,000 people in the last five years. We expect it to keep increasing, because of the many improvements which we are anticipating.

"We have a fine milk and water supply, also.

"The employees are well satisfied with their employers and we have never known a strike.

"Dixon is on the main railroad, running in all directions, with 16 trains daily to Chicago.

"We have had many improvements during the past year, among which are the hydro plant, one of the largest of its kind in the world, 40 blocks of paving, a splendid dry goods store, and an I. N. U. plant.

"When people inquire as to whether we have reasons for new industries coming here, the answer is decidedly, 'yes'."

Supper for Preps to be Held Friday Night

A scramble supper for the preps of the Y. M. C. A. is to be held at the Y building on Friday night. Every boy 10 to 12 years of age that is a member of the Y. M. C. A. is urged to be present. Several boys have already made arrangements with Mr. Snapp and some have agreed to bring a good friend that wished to enjoy the feed with them. This is the second feed for the classes at the Y. The other one was for the juniors. There are about forty boys enrolled in the prep class and a real good crowd is expected. After the supper and a short snappy program the boys will go down for a swim under the direction of Mr. Snapp. The party starts promptly at 6:15, and the boys will be out of the building by 8:15.

Bowling Starts Off in Earnest at Y Alleys

Bowling started off in good shape yesterday on the Y alleys. One of the first men on the alleys started off his season by bowling a score of 205. The Pin Setters are right on the job and no time is lost on their account. The supper for the season promises to be a real affair as bowling suppers go. It is hoped that a team from the Brown Shoe Co. will enter the Industrial League but as there is only one vacancy left it is open to whoever asks for it first. Captains are requested to send a list of their players to Mr. Snapp as soon as possible. The alleys are open from 4:00 to 10:00.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baird are leaving Dixon to make their home in Mt. Carroll. Mr. Baird has been a baker at the Beier Bakery.

SICK WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Can Be Carried Comfortably Over The Critical Period by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound —Note Mrs. Headen's Case

Macon, Georgia. — "During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me. After doctoring without relief a man who was rooming with us told my son that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured his mother at the Change of Life, so I began taking your medicine. After taking it for two weeks I could get out of my bed by myself. I am now 63 years old and in better health and stronger than ever in my life. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to many suffering women, young and old, and you may use my name anywhere as long as you please. I will be glad to answer any letters sent to me." —Mrs. F. B. HEADEN, 6 Holt Avenue, Macon, Georgia.

In a recent country-wide canvass of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 200,000 replies were received and 93 out of every 100 reported they had been benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.
